

Leveraged Credit Trading Desk Analyst – Vice President/Director

We are presently advising a leading international bank's leveraged credit trading desk in London on their ongoing 2025 recruiting effort. Having had a strong start to the year, the team is seeking to bolster the European research team with the hire of a Vice President-level leveraged credit desk analyst.

Working within an impressive and highly-regarded credit sales and trading group, the role will focus on:

- Analysing and producing investment ideas across both public and private situations in the European Credit market
- Focus across the credit spectrum from high yield bonds and leveraged loans to stressed/event-driven and distressed credit
- Presenting trade ideas to both clients (distressed funds, credit hedge funds, real money, etc.) and the internal proprietary trading book
- Working closely with trading and sales colleagues, as well as international colleagues, to further develop the credit trading platform

The successful candidate will likely have spent time in a credit research role, either on the sell side/trading desk or in a buy side role (distressed, credit hedge fund, leading asset manager). The individual hired will benefit from joining an impressive team of experienced market professionals in one of the top-performing desks in the market.